

Bruce Court

Bruce was born in Victoria, BC. He started in residential construction prior to graduation in 1976. He built houses for almost 20 years before answering the urge to go north. In 1997 he moved wife Valerie and their 6 children to Rose Prairie and started to farm. The first years were taken with milling wood on a Woodmizer sawmill and using a post mill to make fence posts. The lumber for the construction of a house and barn and the posts for the 8 miles of perimeter fence. Then 4 years ago after debating the Beef vs Bison issue, decided on Bison. Now with a herd of over 150 heavily woods blooded cows on over 1400 fenced acres gives us a solid base for a sustainable organic future. Having survived the down turn in the market which so many local producers did not. He looks forward with hope to a full recovery of the Bison industry and what the future holds in store.
